

ROBERT STEIN
CHAIRMAN OF THE CONNECTICUT SITING COUNCIL.

Robert Stein is Chairman of the Connecticut Siting Council, an executive branch agency in Connecticut State Government, appointed by Governor Dannel P. Malloy.

Prior to his appointment on the Council, Chairman Stein served as Land Use Bureau Chief for the City of Stamford, a position he held for fifteen years. In that role, he was responsible for executing some of the city's most ambitious projects, including the implementation of the city's master plan, open space acquisition, park and neighborhood planning, affordable housing developments, downtown revitalization and traffic management.

Chairman Stein also belongs to the Mill River Collaborative, which supports and promotes restoration of the Mill River in Stamford, and the establishment of a greenbelt. The Chairman is also a member of the Mayor's Sustainable Stamford Task Force which helps to promote sustainability through enhanced recycling, corporate challenge for "green initiatives," and the development of land use sustainability regulations.

Chairman Stein began his career with the City of Stamford in 1974 as Assistant Planning and Zoning Director, a position he held through 1995 before becoming Land Use Bureau Chief. He retired from the City of Stamford in early 2011. Prior to working for the City of Stamford, he held positions as a planner for Puerto Montt, Chile and Niagara Falls, New York. Chairman Stein has also served on the Blue Ribbon Commission on Property Tax Burdens and Smart Growth Incentives as well as the Department of Environmental Protection's Landscape Stewardship Advisory Committee.

Chairman Stein received his Bachelors from the University of Michigan and his Masters from the University of Pennsylvania. The Chairman is a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners.
