"Remembering our fallen, honoring their sacrifice and respecting their choice to serve our country, these are duties that we, as American citizens, must hold in high regard...Our Nation's survival will always depend on those who value and wish to preserve the rights and freedoms for which so many have died. The very oath that each individual takes upon entry into the Armed Forces, requires great commitment to those ideals, incredible courage and faithful integrity. We are indebted to all who have taken that oath in the past, in the present and will take in the future. We must ourselves vow to never forget those who have loved America enough to serve, protect and at times give their ultimate sacrifice.

Adlai Stevenson wrote, "individuals who have offered their lives for their country know that patriotism is not the fear of something, it is the love of something."

Not just for Veterans Day, or Memorial Day, but everyday we urge you to reach out and honor our fallen by showing respect to our flag for which they have fought, respect to our memorials, and the show of gratitude to our precious veterans. Veterans, who bear the burden of service through out their lives, and carry in their hearts the fullest measure that was given by their comrades in arms. Veterans, who at times, have witnessed the fall in battle of their friends and perhaps even held them in their arms as they breathed their last breath. We know that it is these very veterans, the depth of their devotion and their commitment to our nation that our son revered and aspired to follow.

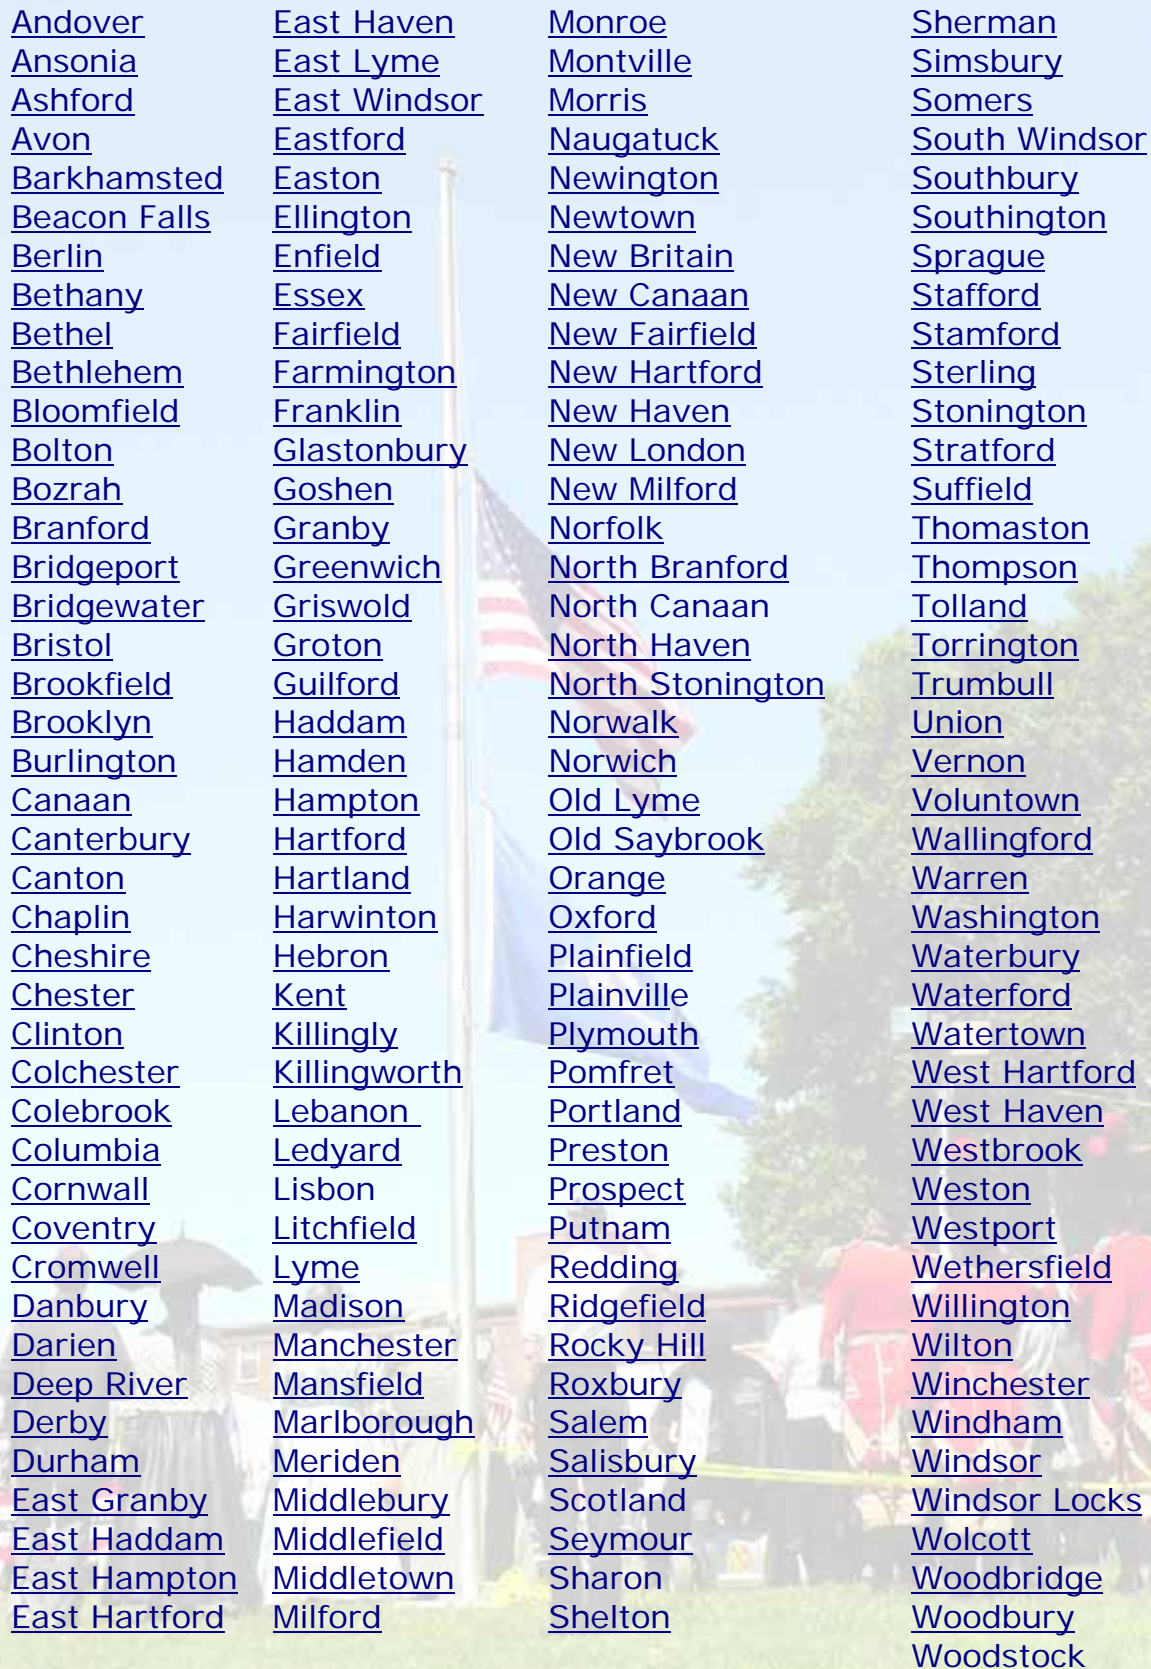

When you visit our state's veterans' memorials, ask yourself,
"Am I living my life in a way that deserves these individuals giving their lives for me?"

These are comments from a Connecticut Gold Star Family whose son was killed in action in Iraq
