

CREATE A BALANCING TEST TO THE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT TO PROTECT CRIME VICTIMS
HOUSE BILL NO. 6670

As a victim, it is hard enough to be burdened with the affects experienced after a crime has been committed against you. However, it becomes even more difficult when you find certain, and in most cases, unnecessary details of the crime being given to the public, such as crime scene photos, autopsy photos, sensitive financial information, as well as video recordings of the crime as they occur—all to sensationalize the crime. While it is important that the public have access to information about the criminal judicial system, the availability of certain information to the public can bring further suffering to victims. Crime victims deserve the same right to privacy as many state employees in Connecticut receive. It is unfair that during some of crime victims' darkest hours, that they are not protected, yet forced to have private details of their experience plastered on newspapers or the television.
